

School Garden Spearheaded by Snodgrass Featured on Bloomberg Radio

2010 Teaching Fellow Helen Snodgrass is the driving force behind the school garden at YES Prep North Forest. Started to bring to life the concepts she teaches in her biology classes, her work with the school garden was featured on a November 29, 2013 segment of Bloomberg Radio Honor Roll. Listen now to learn more about how the garden has flourished over the last year.

One Response to "SCHOOL GARDEN SPEARHEADED BY SNODGRASS FEATURED ON BLOOMBERG RADIO"

Vasos Panagiotopoulos

March 15, 2014 - 9:47 pm

I think what you are doing is great, but my uncle Georges Vasiliou Panagiotopoulos (1917-2007) wrote a book on School Gardens in Greek in 1952

Athens. He is credited with turning school gardens into engines of scientific education which was responsible with a boom in scientific achievement for agrarian children. My uncle graduated Plato's Academy in 1940 but never realised his scholarship to France and instead ended up in a German POW camp in Crete. After the war, he was assigned to a village named

Aegalianos which was soon destroyed by the communists, so he was appointed

Palace Tutor for the royal children (incl the ex-King Constantine). In 1960 he was chief of staff for education Minister Karapiperis and ended his career as an elementary schools superintendent. Godspeed for your good work!